AMERICAN LEGION TO SPEND $3000 FOR ALTERATIONS ON MANZANITA CLUB BUILDING

CARMEL American Legion post has completed arrangements for a long-term lease of Manzanita hall, now occupied jointly by the Manzanita club and the Legion, and will proceed immediately with alterations to cost about $3000, it was announced this week by Legion officials. Among the improvements will be a new meeting hall and a luxurious lounge. It is believed that it will not be necessary to close the building while the alterations are in progress.

At the same time it was announced that the Legion will organize a new men's club, to use the facilities of the remodeled Manzanita hall. Membership will not be restricted to the roster of the post and the Manzanita club, but will be open to all friends of the two groups.

The new plans are the result of long study and many conferences between the two organizations, with the objective of securing quarters both more commodious and more comfortable than those now available. Since the organization of the Legion post and the women's auxiliary the building has become the center of so many activities and of such large groups that the quarters have been outgrown.

Argyll Campbell Off to Washington on Business Trip

Argyll Campbell entrained for Washington, D. C. last evening, having secured leave of absence for a few days as city attorney of Carmel and Monterey. His trip is in the interest of legislation for the Monterey sardine industry. During his absence E. Guy Ryker will serve as city attorney pro tem, provided that council meetings or other city business require it.

Rainfall for Season Reaches 11.51 Inches

Slowly the rainfall figures are creeping up on those of last year. Four rainy days this week brought the season's total, at 8 o'clock yesterday morning, to 11.51; last year on Feb. 14 the total was 14.57. Rain from Monday until 8 o'clock Tuesday morning was recorded as .52 inches. Next day's reading of the rain gauge was .80; and from Wednesday to Thursday morning the precipitation was .62. And still raining!

New Social Hall Now In Use By Masonic Club After Remodeling

THIS EVENING for the first time the new social hall of the Masonic club will be in use, following the monthly meeting of the lodge. For approximately a year the club has been engaged in remodeling its home on Lincoln street for the use of its tenant, the new Masonic lodge. The building, one of the oldest in Carmel, has been used by the club for the past ten years. In order to provide a second-story lodge room, it was necessary to raise the building on its foundation. Held up by a legal technicality, the restriction against clubs in the Carmel residence district, completion of the ground floor room for social purposes proceeded rapidly following the rezoning of the property into the business district. The Masons have promised that the property will never be used for other than club and lodge purposes.

The new social hall is pleasantly proportioned and roomy, 30 feet by 33, with an alcove to accommodate a small but conveniently arranged kitchenette. Walls and ceiling are plastered and tinted a warm cream. The floor is waxed, for dancing. New dishes, silverware and card tables have been purchased, largely as the result of gifts; more than $1000 has been donated to help with the work of remodeling and equipping the quarters. The Masons and their sister organization, the Winodausis club, look forward to many pleasant dinners, card parties and dances made possible by the opening of the social hall. The Winodausis club's piano is already installed; the women will also hold their functions in the Masonic hall.

The lodge room upstairs has also been enlarged by the removal of certain unnecessary partitions, arrangement of windows and doors changed, and beautiful blue draperies hung. Size is not the objective here; the Masons are proud of the fact that theirs is the smallest Masonic lodge room in the state of California!

Recently elected officers of the Masonic club are William T. Kibbler, president; Charles A. Watson, vice-president; Judge George L. Wood, secretary-treasurer; Harry C. Farley and Morris McK. Wild, directors. Plans are now under way for installation of the officers of the lodge. The club and the lodge are not identical organizations; there are members of the lodge who are not members of the club, the older organization, and club members who do not belong to the lodge.

Firehouse Election Ordinance Passed

The ordinance calling a special election to vote bonds of $12,000 for Carmel's share of the cost of building a firehouse passed second reading at last evening's session of the council. The election will be held Tuesday, March 3.

KITE FESTIVAL POSTPONED

Due to illness, the closing of Sunset school and consequent delay in the preparations, the annual kite festival scheduled for next Saturday has been postponed until Saturday, March 14, it was announced this week by Ernest R. Calley.

Pal Back Home After Abduction By Salinas Man

Pal has returned to his home, and to his customary beat in Carmel. The popular mutt-about-town was kidnapped last week by a well-known Salinas business man, who wanted company to share a convivial mood. Pal reports that he was well-treated at the outset of the adventure. In Monterey he was provided with a juicy steak, but arrived in Salinas his captor suddenly lost interest and abandoned him to fate in the form of the dog-catcher. Pal was ransomed by his mistress from the Salinas pound. She now proposes to collect or know the reason why, from the abductor.

ON MUSIC PROJECT

James N. Parsons, district supervisor of the Federal Music Project, with headquarters in San Jose, arrived yesterday to spend several days conferring with Dene Denny, supervisor of the Monterey county project, and members of the local advisory committee.

Hart House String Quartet To Open Music Season Here Tonight

THE winter series of the Carmel Music Society opens this evening in the Sunset School auditorium with the concert of the Hart House String Quartet. This promises to be an event of outstanding importance to the musical world. Tickets have sold so rapidly that a full house is assured. Not only from Carmel but from all over the peninsula, Salinas and Watsonville will this concert draw its attendance. It has been very encouraging to its sponsors to receive this widespread appreciation.

Within 12 years the Hart House String Quartet has taken its place among the leading ensembles of the world. The honorable Vincent Massey, first Canadian minister to Washington, and Mrs. Massey in founding and sponsoring the quartet have given music lovers an opportunity of hearing chamber music of the highest order. The quartet has visited every province in Canada, leading cities of the United States and major music centers of Europe. Everywhere press and public have acclaimed it as an outstanding exponent of chamber music.

Since the inception of the quartet it has given more than 900 public concerts and has crossed the North American continent eight times. Besides appearing for Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge it was signally honored by an invitation to appear with Maurice Ravel in New York, which led to further appearances in five other cities with the celebrated French composer.

Eugene Goossens, eminent English composer and conductor of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, says: "The Hart House String Quartet ranks today as one of the major organizations in the realm of chamber music. Its members achieve an ensemble which not only stamps them as fine musicians, but equips them for the entire repertory of the string quartet from Beethoven to Bartok. Their progressive spirit and their enterprise where new music is concerned gives them an especially authoritative voice in its performance."

With the announcement that James Levey had accepted the post of first-violin of the Hart House Quartet, letters and telegrams from all parts of the world have been received, congratulating the ensemble on its achievement in bringing his back to the chamber-music world. Such messages came from Fritz Kreisler, Mischa Elman, Toscha Seidel, Leopold Godowsky, Harold Samuel, Felix Salmond, and Adolfo Beti, former leader of the Flonzaley Quartet.

This evening's program will open with the Mozart quartet in D minor, distinguished by its sheer melodic beauty. It was written after the birth of the composer's first son, Raymond, under a premonition that the child would not live. This accounts for the tinge of sadness unusual in Mozart, especially noticeable in the first movement, Allegro moderato. The Andante, a lullaby, has the mood from the first to the third movement, Minuetto, which is gay, and punctuated by the sound of a cock's crow.

The final movement, Allegro ma non troppo, is one of the loveliest things Mozart ever wrote. The theme, with variations, resembles an Italian barcarolle. Each instrument takes the lead in turn.

The second number is H. Waldo Warner's Opus 42, "Moods." Warner is an English composer, born in 1874, winner of various prizes for chamber music, including the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge award. The various moods this composition portrays are: pleading, gracious, puckish, devotional, hysterical, amorous, and conceited.

Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Opus 59, No. 2, closes the concert. The movements are allegro, molto adagio, allegretto and presto. Beethoven's three string quartets, opus 59, composed during the latter half of 1806 and dedicated to Count Rastoumovski, Russian ambassador to the court of Vienna, are outstanding in the composer's so-called second period, when his most popular works were written. In the trio of the allegretto a well-known Russian theme is introduced.

Eleven Cases Heard By Judge Geo. Wood

Eleven cases were heard in Judge George Wood's court during January, and $62 in fines was collected. Disturbing the peace; one was fined and one committed to jail. For drunkenness in public one was fined, one committed to jail. Four speeders paid fines. Fines were paid for two minor traffic violations and by one driver who had no operator's license.

Need for Better Sewage Disposal

At the regular meeting of the Sanitary Board last Friday evening routine business was transacted and further plans were made for the board's project to lay before the people of the sanitary district the need for a better plan for sewage disposal. In this connection the board read and discussed the following letter from Charles K. Van Ripper, from whom permission for publication was secured:

Friday, Feb. 7, 1936.

Carmel Sanitary Board,
Carmel, California.

Gentlemen:—It is reassuring to know that your board has taken up the question of sewage disposal with the purpose of finding a permanent, long-range solution of the problem. The temporary installation at the river-mouth was, even when operating, inadequate for the present maximum requirements of a community which continues to expand. It was, moreover, not physically available to large areas.

Northwest of my home on the Point is such an area. It is densely built-up. I am informed by the man who was in charge of my place last summer that through the warm months this area produced a heavy stench. In hot weather and at peak residency it constitutes a nuisance, and potentially is a menace to health. With the disposal plant at the opposite point of the compass, a thoroughly undesirable situation exists.

Although your board's responsibility to the community is primarily to maintain a serviceable sanitary system, considerations of other aspects of the problem are your rightful concern. Continuance of sewage disposal at the present river location deprives the community of the enjoyment of one of its most attractive natural features. The necessary structure and the fact of concentration of sewage at the river-mouth impairs the charm of the place. Through association of ideas a pseudo-validity has been conferred on the public willfulness in scattering litter and debris. Instead of a playground which the children for years delighted in, the area is a place of tin cans, broken glass and bacteria.

In planning and providing for the disposal of sewage at some point remote from the waterfront (a fixed and limited extent, all conspicuously beautiful, and the greatest asset of the community), your board will serve the taxpayers doubly well. In addition to solving your own immediate problem, you will have restored a beauty spot.

In closing, there remains to be mentioned the tendency to confuse the civic affairs of the City of Carmel itself with those of the very much more extensive district of which it is a part. Civic financing should not be a barrier to the broader improvement of the community, but in practice it does operate as a deterrent. If a bond issue is indicated as necessary to your plans, information of the need should be given Carmel city residents before

Eleven Arrests By Police During January

Eleven arrests were made by the police here during the month of January. Police Chief Robert A. Norton reported to the city council. Six arrests were for traffic violations, four were for intoxicated disturbers of the peace, and one warrant was served for the San Leandro police. Three house robberies and two clothes-line robberies were reported, but no arrests were made. Two minor automobile accidents were investigated.

they commit themselves to any other obligation.

Very truly,
C. K. VAN RIPER.

Report More Dogs Die of Poisoning

Additional reports have come in this week of dogs dying under circumstances indicating poisoning. The police are working on the theory that some of the deaths may have been caused by dogs finding unburied portions of the steelheads caught at the mouth of Carmel river, and which are believed, like salmon, to be fatal to dogs. However, another instance was reported of a pet dog prevented in the nick of time from snapping up on his own front porch sections of beef heart smeared with a substance which a druggist pronounced to be poison. Fishermen are urged to be careful to dispose of unwanted fish and raw fish remnants in such a manner that dogs will not find them.

Welfare Work Not "Basket-Toting"

AN impression that county welfare is trying to be something more than haphazard "basket-toting" was given by County Welfare Director William H. Leach, speaking Tuesday noon at the monthly luncheon meeting of the Monterey County League of Women Voters. An effort to give the underprivileged a basic sense of security is a part of the objective of welfare work, he pointed out. He emphasized the "dual responsibility" of the welfare administration, to the taxpayer as well as to the relief client.

Conditions have changed so rapidly during the past few troubled years that much of the welfare director's talk was devoted to an outline of recent history, helping his hearers to grasp the present status of county welfare. Mr. Leach expressed warm regard for the county supervisors, who in relation to his office have showed themselves "progressive and understanding" possessed of social conscience and scrupulous in keeping politics out of relief. The lay commission, the county welfare board, he also gained the gratitude of the welfare director.

The county welfare now has three divisions, he explained; the state-aid division, administering funds for the needy blind, orphans and aged; county aid to families temporarily embarrassed, as by incarceration of the bread-winner; and unemployment relief, now being returned to the county through consolidation of the state emergency relief with county welfare.

Discussing new social security measures Mr. Leach indicated a certain confusion that has arisen through the use of the word "pension" in referring to aid to the aged. Only the needy aged, he stressed, without relatives to help them, will come under the provision of the old age security legislation. "Worse than the money problem," he said, "is the current breakdown in the sense of family responsibility."

The county relief load, Mr. Leach said, has jumped from 964 in 1932, when only unincorporated areas were helped by county welfare, to an estimated 2805 this year, the set-up now including towns and cities of the county as well.

The speaker discussed at some length the knotty transient problem which has placed a heavy burden on California, the support of indigent families and individuals who left states where relief was inadequate or non-existent, for California's sunnier and friendlier climes. Many families formerly helped by the Federal Transient Bureau have now lived in California long enough to acquire state and county residence, and now bid fair to be a permanent charge on the counties, he pointed out.

Also speaking on the program was Miss Ethel M. Foster, a visitor from England, who spoke from her long background in social service in her own country.

She spoke sympathetically of the relief problems presented by Mr. Leach, recognizing the difficulty experienced by the United States in having to organize suddenly to meet depression problems. As early as 1908, she said, England had to begin to meet the problems which developed later in this country; therefore it had both experience and organization with which to meet the impact of post-war depression. She also discussed briefly the fine English civil service system.

Mrs. Howard Walters presided as program chairman and introduced the two speakers.

Boy Scout Week Activities Told

Yesterday was the final day of Boy Scout Week, which was actively observed here. Troops 86 and 39 hiked Sunday to Puerto Suello, Will Jacks' beautiful property in Ranchito de Aguajito, indulging in nature study on the way, and enjoying a barbecue lunch on arrival. Raymond Talley and Jack Canoles were in charge of arrangements. After lunch the boys played baseball and passed various tests for merit badges. A religious service was held, and Jack Schroeder delivered a short sermon. Among the adults present were Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Crossman, Jack Flynn, Louis Levinson, Walter Gadum, Herb Brownell, Henry Bauernschmidt, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Canoles.

Accident prevention dodgers were distributed last Saturday. A window display arranged by Scouts, Sea Scouts and Cubs, has attracted much attention in the window of Carmel Garage.

A court of honor will be held next Friday evening at Sunset auditorium at 8 o'clock.

Science Reviews New Forestry Book

One of the country's best known text books on forestry, The Theory and Practice of Silviculture, by Professor Frederick S. Baker of the University of California's Division of Forestry, is made the subject of a special article in the current issue of Science Magazine, the official organ of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. While the book is intended primarily for classroom instruction, it is proving popular in OCC camps and among other groups interested in forestry and forest conservation.

The article in Science is from the pen of Raphael Zon, director of the Lake States Forest Experiment Station of the United States Forest Service at St. Paul, Minnesota. Zon is one of the oldest practicing foresters in the country. He recommends the book not only for classroom purposes, but for the practicing forester as well.

The book is the second of a series on forestry being turned out by its publishers, a New York company. It is being used in nearly all of the forest schools of the United States.

VOTE AT SUNSET IN HIGH SCHOOL ELECTION

Sunset school has been designated as the polling place for the Monterey high school bond election to be held Tuesday, March 3. Election officers will be J. L. Cockburn, Adolph Hanke and Hester H. Schoeninger. The election has been called for a vote on an issue of $50,000 to defray the expense of earthquake proofing the high school buildings.

Astaire's Rival Does Lively Steps in "First A Girl" Showing at Filmarte

THE Filmarte continues to bring films from the four corners of the earth, alternating between brand new pictures and the 'last chance' showings of smash hits of a season or two past.

This week-end the latest London novelty holds the screen, with the lovely Jessie Mathews, Fred Astaire's fast-stepping rival, dominating the brilliant dancing-show, "First a Girl." On Sunday, "Les Miserables" starts with Charles Laughton and Fredric March, playing three nights in one of the most powerful and inspiring pictures ever put forth by Hollywood.

Next Wednesday and Thursday the famous German underworld film, "M", will excite the interest of the entire peninsula region. The picture has been brought west to play one of Hollywood's principal theaters next month. Carmel will meanwhile enjoy a sort of preview on account of the interest shown by a number of Hollywood people in the success of the little Filmarte, known as the selective California theatre, outside of the strictly international San Francisco houses beyond the Los Angeles and Hollywood district.

Following "M", the Filmarte will revive, beginning with Friday, March 21, the brilliant and tuneful "One Night of Love," with Grace Moore and Tullio Carminati. Here is a picture that should be brought back every year or so, but alas! under the peculiar policy of the movie lords, it is soon to be "scrapped," which means that every print will be called in. The hundreds of thousands of feet of film will be destroyed for the silver which may be extracted from it.

"So when the Filmarte advertises a 'last chance' night," says Edward Kuster, now handling the Filmarte's affairs, "it really means, in this case, the last time on earth we shall hear Grace Moore's voice in the exquisite songs she made famous. Unless, perchance, Miss Moore should die and the magnates could be shown that 'big money' might be made out of re-issues off the master-film now resting in the vaults."

After "One Night of Love," a new playing schedule probably operative until summer, will be put into effect. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday showings will be discontinued. Full announcement next week.

Legion Sponsors Tchernavin Talk

Tatiana Tchernavin, whose book "Escape from the Soviets" was considered one of the books of consequence of last season, will be brought to Carmel next week under the sponsorship of the American Legion, Carmel Post, and presented in Pine Inn Thursday evening, Feb. 20, by the Denny-Watrous management.

"Escape from the Soviets" has been translated into seven languages, and "I Speak for the Silent," written by Mme. Tchernavin's husband, has attracted almost equal attention. Tatiana Tchernavin has lectured in England, France, Belgium and in several other countries of Europe.

Mme. Tchernavin will speak on "An Intellectual Worker in the U. S. S. R.", and will be introduced by a member of the American Legion.

The wife of a scientist, she was herself brought up in a liberal professional family and had, up to the time of the revolution, felt convinced that the overthrow of the autocracy would lead to real political freedom. Her story is the more valuable because of her original point of view, from which she was forced to depart through her experience in the drive against her class.

"I'm Going to Build This Year"

HAVING discussed some of the points to be considered by prospective buyers of houses, we now turn to the even more fascinating business of building. Carmel and the adjacent areas are very conscious of the building fever that in the last year has given a new skyline to Hatton Fields and the Point, and has resulted in many beautiful little homes in the village as well.

Having acquired a location and a general idea of the type of home wanted, the first practical point to consider is whether to turn the whole thing over to a contractor and possibly an architect, or to employ day labor. Many Carmelites are experienced enough to supervise construction themselves, and with a sufficient background of experience, this is undoubtedly the cheaper way to build. But woe betide the unhappy wight who plunges with much misinformed enthusiasm into the business of bringing his dream-house into the concrete without sound technical knowledge.

Many would-be home-owners spend hours drawing plans of the "Ideal house"; a pleasant occupation, but one apt to be futile here unless the planner has a particular lot in mind, for almost no two lots in Carmel are identical in contour. This accounts for many of the charming irregularities and unconventional features in Carmel cottages; they are built to suit the setting, and to leave as undisturbed as possible the native vegetation.

An architect brings to his work a native taste, an intelligent and sympathetic understanding of the taste and needs of the client, and a thorough technical grounding. A contractor takes from the owners' hands responsibility for purchase of materials, workmen's compensation insurance, which is compulsory in California, and for wages. Anyone planning to build with day labor, acting as his own foreman, should keep it in mind that California law requires employers of day labor to post conspicuously notice of a designated payday, and to observe that pay day. A building permit must be obtained either by the contractor or the owner, from the office of the city inspector in the city hall.

Carmel has no building ordinance, but it has certain requirements, embodied in fire ordinances, of which builders should inform themselves. Carmel is very conscious of the fire menace, because of the heavy forest and brush areas.

Type of construction is governed only by individual taste. The "board and batten" cottage is a tradition of Carmel, although in many ways this is not sound construction. Difficulties are encountered in wiring; wires must be carried down the crack between boards, then covered with the batten, or, for ceiling lights, rafters must be grooved out to accommodate the wire. The board and batten house warms up quickly when the sun shines; it cools off with equal swiftness in the cool nights. An insulated house is a warmer house; as one builder expressed it, "You can pay the builder for proper insulation or you can pay the P. G. & E. more for gas. The cost is about the same in the long run."

An all-wooden house with double walls and proper insulation, retains much of the typical charm of the board and batten house, the interior wood paneling of redwood or knotty pine or other attractive material, the typical rustic exterior, and the shake or shingle roof. There are two disadvantages; the structure is not fire resistant, and lumber is more expensive than plaster. For this reason the stucco house, in cheaper construction, is gradually replacing the board-and-batten house. Stucco presents certain problems in this climate; it must be very thoroughly water-proofed, or it disintegrates in continued contact with moist air. The cool moisture, on the other hand, is very kind of exterior timbers and shingled roofs.

WPA Headquarters

Moving to Monterey

Headquarters for WPA in Monterey county will be moved to Monterey from Salinas this week-end, according to Major W. H. Landers, county manager, who has received the order from Hugh A. Beaton, Jr., Tenth district director.

Reason for moving the offices to Monterey is that there are a larger number of projects under way on the peninsula than in any other part of the county.

More Disposal Plant

Damage From Waves

Thunderous, storm-driven waves lured many sightseers to the beach Wednesday. The effect was particularly picturesque in the vicinity of the sewage disposal plant, where streamers of foam played in and out amid the wreckage of another section of fence and abandoned settling tanks. The sea is creeping relentlessly toward the one tank remaining in use, from which raw sewage is dumped on the beach at high tide each day. The sanitary board had only just cleared away wreckage caused by high seas earlier in the season; more temporary work will have to be done immediately.

McGrath Announces

Candidacy for Congress

John J. McGrath, member of Congress for this Eighth district, has announced himself for renomination and re-election. Regarding his candidacy he says:

"I have been highly honored by the citizens of the district and I deeply desire this opportunity of continuing my services in Washington.

"As in the past, I will give myself without reserve to the interests of the district. My loyalty to the President can never be questioned, and my devotion to the people of the district is absolute."

Mrs. Lawrence M. Knox, chairman, began an intensive review of the background of the Japanese, Chinese, Manchurian situation at the meeting of the Woman's club current events section Wednesday morning, which she will continue at the next of the fortnightly meetings. In a talk bristling with barbarous-sounding names and packed with formidable statistics, she marshaled effectively facts which are difficult for an Occidental audience to grasp, due to their long preoccupation with European affairs, where, until a few years ago, most Americans thought history and geography began and ended. Due to the awakening consciousness of world-wide interlocking of destinies, groups are increasingly eager for just such information as Mrs. Knox has prepared herself to give, through thorough study and enhanced by her own residence in China until the tense political situation in 1926 saw her and Dr. Knox as a part of the exodus of American missionaries.

Mrs. Knox effectively pictured Manchuria as tempting to the Japanese, because of the rich natural resources of this unexploited region, its comparative sparseness of population, and its capacity to accommodate many farmers. She went into the political and economic tangle of Russian, Chinese and Japanese control of railroads, and prepared to take up next a discussion of the League of Nations and its attitude in the face of modernization and aggressive expansion in the Orient.

Preservation of Point Lobos' Natural Beauty Discussed By Park Advisory Board

IMPORTANT matters of policy affecting the preservation of natural beauty in Point Lobos state reserve were discussed at a recent meeting of the Point Lobos advisory committee, at which an exhaustive report by Olmsted Brothers, nationally known landscape engineers, was presented. The park committee will recommend to the state park board a policy of non-interference with nature, in so far as is at all feasible. As important in maintaining the unique, wild beauty of this unsurpassed area, the committee has suggested that smoking and the building of fires be prohibited within the boundaries of the reserve; that large groups be "discouraged" from congregating there, and that motor highways, with the exception of two main arteries, be eliminated; that visitors to the park be "diverted" to hiking trails and encouraged to keep to trails rather than straying at will, to the hazard of natural vegetation. Purchase of a modern fire truck was also recommended. What action the park board will take on these suggestions are not yet known; members of the advisory committee admitted that it might be too much to hope that the prohibition of picnic fires and smoking would actually be enacted.

Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur is chairman of the advisory committee, of which Dr. John C. Merriam is an ex-officio member. On the landscaping subcommittee are Duncan McDuffie, chairman, Paul Dougherty, Allen Griffin, Mrs. Robert Hunter

After a survey of Point Lobos carried on for more than a year, advisors to the committee have made the following reports: "Statement Interpreting a Master Plan," Olmsted Brothers; "Land Vertebrates," Dr. Grinnell and Dr. Linsdale; "List of Plants," Dr. Mason; "Map and Notes on Distribution of Plants," Mr. Lee; "Tree Diseases," Dr. Wagener; "Geological Formations," Dr. Chaney and Dr. Bramkamp; "Archaeological Reconnaissance," Mr. Wedel; "Notes on Marine Invertebrates," Dr. Fisher and Dr. Leitch; "Notes on Habit of Visitors to Point Lobos," Mr. Vaughn and Dr. Leitch; "Weather records, vicinity of Point Lobos," Memoranda by Dr. Merriam, Dr. Clements and others on phases of the problem.

The park committee is unanimous in the belief that it is not only desirable but imperative to keep Point Lobos "wild," but this is a less simple matter than it may seem. Unrestricted use of the park by the people of California and their visitors tends to destroy the very qualities which attract visitors to the place; yet the park is intended for public use.

A Carmelish note is sounded in the Olmsted Brothers report, which points out the disadvantages of attempting to "ballyhoo" large numbers of visitors to the park. Let those who love and appreciate the park find their way there, the report intimates. The 50-cent admission charge is less a revenue measure than to impress visitors with the necessity of leaving as little trace of their presence as possible. Hikers may enter free of charge.

Where should the "hands-off" policy operate, and where should man take a hand in preservation of nature? The report emphasizes that these questions should never be left to the judgment of one individual, no matter how well-meaning. Certain facts are known; they should be deliberated long before any action is taken. For instance, the waves are battering away at Cypress Point; should the expense of huge artificial walls be undertaken, or should the cypresses make their own "strategic retreat" inland, as they must have done in ages past? The committee is inclined to keep hands off here. But the old cannery buildings at Carmel Cove, an evidence of man's recent activity, should be removed. The meadows, once agricultural clearings, permit sea erosion; gravel removed from the pebbled beaches, commercially, in times past, and by the state, also has encouraged erosion to an unnatural degree. Some phase of control may be attempted in these places, but these matters, too, are still in the realm of scientific speculation. It is thought best to avoid, as much as possible, either the planting of native vegetation, no matter how naturalistically achieved, to cover denuded areas, or the removal of any species to encourage the growth of others.

The scientists cast one long, wistful glance at an ideal natural laboratory. It would be grand, they think, if a complete "hands off" policy could be followed, in order to study just what happens in such a realm, rich in plant and animal life, if left completely in a "state of nature" and at war with the elements. But the preserve was not created for scientists alone, the committee reminds them; it is the property of the people of the state of California, and entitled to a certain amount of preservation.

Arch-Deacon Will Preach at All Saints

Ven. William Reginald Heber Hodgkin, arch-deacon of the Episcopal diocese of California, will preach the sermon at All Saints church Sunday morning, it was announced this week by Rev. Austin B. Chinn. On Monday the arch-deacon will hold a conference of all Episcopal clergymen of the Monterey bay area, at All Saints.

Last Sunday the parish had the pleasure of an address by Rev. Leslie T. Learned, who has recently retired after 27 years as rector of All Saints church in Pasadena. Rev. Learned has had a home in Carmel for many years, and expects to spend most of his time here in the future.

IT SEEMS there still prevails considerable confusion about registering to vote in California this year.

The registrar has reported that numerous citizens think all the shouting about having to sign up is wrong, and that the whole thing is a mistake.

It is easy to understand their misapprehension, and unjust to blame them. After all they were told when they registered before, that the business was final, and they'd never have to do it again unless they went out of the state.

So they were told, then. However, the last legislature nullified the permanent registration law and called for this new registration. In Carmel those voters who were on the old great register will not have to re-register to vote on the forthcoming firehouse bonds. The old register will be used. But for the August primaries they will have to be on the new register.

Some say that re-registration is actually nothing more than a test for party strength. Others believe that it is necessary for the elimination of names on the rolls which are not quite "correct." Either way, though, everyone must sign again this year in order to vote at the primary or general election.

One sure thing is that this will be one of the biggest turnouts in history for the primaries, and then the general presidential election later. And what an exciting political struggle it will be! You won't want to miss it.

So why not register now, before it is too late.

It would be fine to have no hobos or bums in California. And the way they flock into the state in winter time does constitute a serious problem. But there is a right way and a wrong way of solution.

Obviously, the present "direct action" method being attempted by Los Angeles is the wrong way. Los Angeles certainly is doing herself no good. Laughter, ridicule and ill will have already been heaped on that city by counties that rightly resent having outsiders assume police powers in their community, by governors of three adjoining states, and by persons with sufficient sense of humor to see something quixotic and pitifully funny in what has been termed the "L. A. Expeditionary Force," the "Foreign Legion," or the "Border Patrol."

California has numerous problems which, when we're feeling excessively impatient, we'd like to solve by "direct action" that is outside the pale of slower, more sound legal and legislative procedure.

For example, overburdened taxpayers would like simply to wipe out taxes and debt, and forget about them.

Citizens who fret over the expense and inefficiency of legislators often feel that we ought to abolish the state senate and house, and substitute one good and efficient man, or council, to rule us.

But we have sense enough not to try these obviously ridiculous methods, because we know such impatience would bring quite the reverse of the good results we were seeking.

If this business of barring transients from California is legal, and if the people want it done, it can and will be done through the legislature, and not through the far-flung "expeditionary force" of the Los Angeles city police.

If you see numerous people going about mumbling absent-mindedly to themselves and scribbling figures all over everything at every opportunity, don't be alarmed. They're probably just trying to work out their income tax.

Citizens have a double dose of it now. Already harassed by the job of figuring what they owe the Federal government, they got through the mails recently their state income tax blank, the first ever sent out under California's new law passed by the last legislature.

This is the one time of the year when those who don't earn enough to have to pay income tax really have the laugh on their bigger-salaried fellow citizens. Because, to say the process of filing returns is "complicated" would be a gross understatement.

There are, however, a few salient points about the new law which all of us ought to know, so that we may be sure about when, how, and if it affects us.

First, the tax is collectible on all income received since Jan. 1, 1935. It does not apply at all to those earnings less than $1000 a year, while married persons making less than $2500 a year are exempt. There are numerous minor deductions, but the principal one is that of $400 for each dependent who is under 18 years of age or is incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective.

As to the amount of the tax, it is one per cent of all incomes not in excess of $5000; $150 on net incomes of $10,000; $300 on those of $15,000; $500 on incomes of $20,000; $1050 on those of $30,000 and $2550 on those of $50,000. Must we go further? Oh, well, there might be some in Carmel who receive $80,000 annually and they will pay $5550 and if you are in the $250,000 a year class you'll pay $28,450.

The few gentlemen of the larger incomes, with various sources and numerous angles, have the really complicated tasks. But they can afford to hire a staff of legal talent to work out their problems.

For the moderately fixed person, however, there is no reason to despair. Sometime the latter part of this month in various banks throughout the state there will be persons to offer guide and counsel free of charge. So, unless you're a legal light yourself or a highly successful certified accountant, it might be advisable to wait until that time to put the finishing touches on your income tax blank.

—ROSS C. MILLER.

"The Wedge"

North of the Rio Grande, we tend to look on the Mexican revolution as a confusing and meaningless clash of robber bands in which illiterate and greedy men went out for loot and blindly served the cause of self-seeking schemers.

It takes a book like "The Wedge," a novel by Herman B. Deutsch, to jar our picture of things back into focus. The picture still isn't entirely clear; there was confusion, self-seeking, looting and scheming—plenty of it—but it is no longer a meaningless welter of bloodshed and violence.

Mr. Deutsch describes the revolutionary experiences of a boy from a Mexican village, and presents the whole disordered scene from the fall of Diaz to the rise of Obregon through this lad's slowly developing understanding.

There is, first, the slow but passionate rise of resentment against corrupt government and extortionate land owners. This breaks into flame. Armed bands go out blindly, smashing things, living by pillage, slowly coalescing into genuine revolutionary armies. In the end, definite gains are made and life is better—though the ordinary man seldom has a clear idea of what he wants to do or how it is to be done.

Big Collection of Bookplates Exhibited

A collection of between four and five thousand book-plates, gathered from 27 countries over the world, is being catalogued and arranged for reference on the Los Angeles campus of the University of California. The collection is a recent gift to the University by the Bookplate Association International of Los Angeles, and is expected to be of great interest and benefit to students of art on the Los Angeles campus.

The collection includes many color plates, and each of the bookplates are mounted on uniform cards by 8 1/2 by 6 inches. Each card bears the name of the artist, and plates that have received prizes or honors in exhibitions are so designated.

Costume Designer Discusses Styles

What are the outstanding factors in the new feminine style picture of 1936-37.

According to Louise Pinckney Sooy, University of California art faculty member and lecturer in costume design for the University of California extension division, there are many new points—all of them exciting to the feminine mind.

"Primarily, there is the definite military feeling of design in so many of the smart new spring costumes," says Mrs. Sooy. "There is a military feeling in the dramatic use of reds, the greater width across the shoulder and the shapely fit of street costumes. The new silhouette has a snug waist line and a more dapper effect than previous versions."

When it comes to milady's hats, there are two distinct camps of design, says Mrs. Sooy.

"There is the English style of sports hat that with few variations makes its appearance each year from the great houses famed particularly for this kind of hat. They are easy to wear, flattering of brim and pleasing to those who do not wish to go to extremes in their headgear. On the other side, there are the vast number of very eccentric hats, harder to wear but more entertaining when worn well.

Skirt lengths are shorter for street wear and this tendency has crept even into the cocktail dress and Sunday evening dress category. The latter two types of dresses all feature the slim silhouette with occasional fullness around the ankles.

"Anything may happen," says Mrs. Sooy, "but the general tendency for the style pendulum is to swing less distance to each extreme, and I think it doubtful that we will ever again see extreme versions of, on the one hand the hoop skirt, or on the other the knee length skirt of the flapper era."

AMONG THE BOOK SHELVES - - - - VOLUMES OLD AND NEW

By THELMA B. MILLER

"FAREWELL TO REVOLUTION" by Everett Dean Martin is a book which all liberals should read and make their handbook. It contains one of the most comforting defenses of the liberal position that has recently appeared. Conservatives should read it too. They will find in it more reasoned, reasonable and convincing arguments against quick and radical change than they will find in the writings of many conservatives; they will find a more illuminating explanation of the dangers of radicalism than is offered by their favorite literature, the Dilling "Red Network" or the Hamilton Fish report.

Martin maintains, and pretty convincingly proves, that liberalism is not dead, as the radicals contend, but that it will continue to be as it always has been in this and other enlightened democratic republics, the guiding principal for ordered progress.

After a scholarly and exhaustive study of the history of revolution from the flowering of Greek and Roman culture until 1917, the author decides that 'revolution is an almost stereotyped form of social behavior; the phenomena which occur in any one of them, are repeated over and over with almost monotonous regularity through the ages. Beneath the surface of historical accident revolutionary phenomenon regularly manifests certain symptoms of crowd psychology which may be as definitely recognized as the well-known symptoms of the individual neurosis."

Martin believes that the mass of the people is essentially conservative; that revolution has always been the work of a small minority acting in the name of "the people," and attracting to its ranks the street rabble, the disgruntled, the criminal and the socially maladjusted. It promulgates the program of a minority faction, which is imposed with extreme severity and in such manner as to destroy all of those civil liberties which have been won by the orderly advance of civilization.

He shows that revolution brings to an abrupt end and destroys the results of the past work of enlightened statesmen who were concerned with the general good rather than with special privileges to any minority. A despotic system is imposed, after which such liberal elements as escape the debacle must begin all over again the wearisome process of securing social justice. As an example of the way in which revolution interrupts the ordered evolutionary process, he cites the Bolshevik party revolution in Russia; the work of a minority too small to make its will felt in the democratic councils of the country, which resorted to conspiracy and came into power on the eve of a constitutional convention which might have resulted in the formation of a democratic republic something like those of the United States, France and Great Britain.

A vacillating and weak government rather than a corrupt and cruel government has almost always preceded revolution, Martin declares. Revolutions have happened in times of prosperity as often as in times of economic distress. Since 1917 revolutions are no longer 'rationalized by liberal ideas' to which revolutionaries of earlier centuries paid lip-service. The ideal of liberty and all liberal tenets are sneered at; the good of the totalitarian state under an absolute dictator is declared to be better for "the people" than for them to have a voice in their own government. The fascist and nazi regimes made use of Marxian conspiratorial and revolutionary techniques, and, according to this author, carried them quickly to the logical, realistic conclusion: an absolute, despotic dictatorship without reference to the will of the governed.

Martin believes that there will be a change, in all the great countries, in the direction of a "planned economy," but that revolution is futile as a method of effecting any permanent change. "Business itself," he says, "is the prime mover in the present trend toward a planned economy, notwithstanding the protestations to the contrary of many industrialists."

Revolution he sees as a symptom of incapacity to do constructive planning for ordered change—a childish upsetting of the block castle because its outlines will not immediately come right. "Both extreme radicals and extreme conservatives may be susceptible in a time of stress to the temptation to resort to such futile, though destructive, gesticulation."

AFTER a year and a half of preparation, involving the reading of 30,000 poems submitted by 3000 women poets, "Contemporary American Women Poets," an anthology of verse by 1311 living writers, has made its appearance. It was edited by Tooni Gordi and issued under the auspices of The Spinners, the bi-monthly devoted to women's verse. None of the poems selected had appeared in any previous anthology. The publisher is Henry Harrison of New York.

Several poets of Carmel and vicinity are represented, most of whom have been published in The Pine Cone's poetry department. They are Annice Calland, Dora Hagemeyer, Josephine Mildred Blanch, Sara

This is perhaps the first anthology of American women poets to represent the wider viewpoint of the modern woman, and to recommend for oblivion the term "poetess." In her foreword Editor Gordi summarizes the impressions left by previous anthologies for the "gentler sex," ventures to hope that women are approaching the requisite "cosmic view" of the poet regardless of sex. She quotes from an essay on women poets by Virginia Moore in The Bookman of July, 1930, who cited the literary virtues of women: "Sheer sensitivity to bodied or unbodied stimuli, intimacy of treatment, patience with form, tenderness and tact with small things, and ability to see in small things terrific things, pronounced spirituality, and emotional maturity." Their vices: "Sentimentality, narrow scope, over-subjectivism, vanity, preoccupation with self in a kind of bright egotism, lack of cosmic sense and lack of historical sense."

In five years, a period of economic and emotional upheaval, the women poets have found a new idiom and a clarion voice. They have overcome their inherent vices, or at least some of them, and the virtues are emphasized in this collection. Many poets of established reputation are included, but the principal objective of the anthology was "to make known the work of the newer, fresher and less heard voices."—T. B. M.

Geyser Follows Pipeline Break

PACIFIC GROVE

Residents in the vicinity of Mountain View and Torres were treated to a startling display of waterworks Sunday afternoon when the 22-inch main in Mountain View developed a leak, and shot a geyser into the air, higher than the pine trees. The beautiful scenic effect was somewhat mitigated by the fact that what goes up must come down. What came down rushed through the garden of Elizabeth McClung White, leaving devastation in its wake, found an outlet across the garden of The Pine Cone editorial manse, and rushed down Torres. The flood continued for about half an hour.

Officials of the water company reported that the fountain resulted from an old leak which had been repaired. The water company was using a pipe-cleaning device, which goes in here, goes round and round and comes out there. The mended leak was weakened by the cleaning tool, and the terrific pressure of water in the big pipe broke through the old leak.

WITH Mrs. W. G. Cook presiding, the members of the Northwest Group held their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. V. O. McMillan, last week. Mrs. Rose Campbell led the devotionals after which the business meeting was transacted. The home of Mrs. McMillan was attractively decorated in Valentine regalia and delicious refreshments were served to the following: Mrs. Forrest Gamble, Mrs. Robert Mishler, Mrs. Harry Wingard, Mrs. Loren Smith, Miss Virginia Jackson, Miss Carrie Salyer, Miss Carrie Rainier, Mrs. George Sawyer, Mrs. Rose Campbell, Mrs. Walter Cook, and the hostess, Mrs. V. O. McMillan.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hand and their son Ralph, of Piedmont, were visitors on the peninsula over the week-end, staying at Hotel San Carlos. The Hands were the guests of the Andrew Jacobsen family at a barbecue during their short stay.

Amid pillow fights, giggles, bedding battles and other pastimes included in the curriculum of a group of females "spending the night together," the slumber party given by Miss La Verne Schmadeke at her home on Forest avenue Saturday night, reached new heights in merriment. The Misses Barbara Ansell, Barbara Stutzman, Thelma Baxter, Frances Parker, Frances Hodges, Charleen Colvin, La Verne Schmadeke, were the fair "sleepers." Arising at an early hour the pajama-clad group ventured forth into the sunlight and graciously posed for their pictures.

To welcome the advent of Miss Evelyn Brier into their membership, TLW members were hostesses of a party at the home of Miss Harriet Holman with Miss Holman and Miss Olivia Davis in charge, Saturday night. Dancing and games with Valentine favors were the entertainments of the evening. Those attending included: Misses Jean Randol, Olivia Davis, Harriet Holman, Evelyn Brier, Jane Mosher, Mildred Cashin, Doris Cook, Ruth Down, Alice Cosme, Lorraine Borchers, Madeline Jacobsen, and Messrs. Elmer Grant, Charles Lewis, Elmer Dent, Harold French, Bill Tumbleson, Bob King, Bill Crowley, Bill McLean, Thomas Dempsey, Ernest Watson, Vernon Baxter, Kenneth McGill, and Ralph Hand of Piedmont.

Jack Paul was host of a delightful valentine party Saturday night at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Paul in the Spazier tract. The game of "hearts," most opportune at this time, was enjoyed by the guests with Miss Peggy McDonald, and Edmund Hurlbutt carrying off high and low prizes respectively. "Advertising" was indulged in next with Miss Dexta Paul winning first prizes and John de Lorimier contenting himself with "booby."

Refreshments suggesting the valentine motif were consumed by the following guests: Misses Peggy McDonald, Eloise Diefenbaugh, Shirley Diefenbaugh, Dexta Paul of Salinas, who was the house guest of the Pauls over the week-end, Ruth Stutzman and Messrs. Davis Perkins, Tommy Walters, Edmund Hurlbutt, Frank Jackson, John de Lorimier, and the host, Jack Paul.

Mrs. Sheldon Gilmer and Mrs. Emma Gill were hostesses of the Plymouth group at the lovely home of Mrs. Gilmer, Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Sarwine, the group president, presided and each member gave an article on South America which was followed by a discussion of South America in charge of Mrs. Spencer Hoyt, who is directing the study of a book on this country. A business meeting followed at which plans were made for a St. Patrick supper which the group will sponsor. The Misses Beth Gilmer and Marion Gill served refreshments to the following: Mesdames E. R. McQuilkin, J. L. MacKarcher, N. Burlingame, V. O. McMillan, W. G. Cook, Leonard Galbraith, Emma Gill, N. Ellis, C. Sarwine, John Hunter, Spencer Hoyt, C. F. Curry, Silas Mack, Anderson, Gardner, Thompson, Beverton, Gilmer, and Miss Hansen. During the afternoon Dr. John Hunter was present to say a few words.

To commemorate their arrival in their new home on Forest avenue, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Elliott were hosts of a Valentine tea Sunday evening. Games and chatter comprised the evening and at 7:30 they adjourned to the service at the Congregational Church of which the members of the Christian Endeavor had charge. Present were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wingard, Dr. and Mrs. Spencer Hoyt and Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Cook.

With its president, G. I. Pierce in charge, the Holman Club will give a Valentine dance for members of the club and their friends tonight at the Civic club house with Roger Lee and his orchestra supplying the music. The Misses Alma Falt and Mae Leslie will entertain during the intermissions with piano duets.

An event likely to provide much merriment is the Valentine party to be given tonight by members of Berean class. Mrs. Loren Smith is chairman of the affair and will be assisted by Mrs. Earle Duclius, Mrs. Chase Proper, Mrs. Wilfred Mack and Mrs. Spencer Hoyt. Those invited to the affair are Messrs. and Mesdames Loren Smith, Harry Wingard, W. G. Cook, Wilfred Mack, Kenneth Copsey, E. R. Elliot, Kenneth Rowe, Charles Helwig, Chase Proper, Herman Woodward, H. Gruber, Walter Rounten, Earle Duclius, Arthur Mack, Tannehill and Captain and Mrs. Shotwell, and Dr. and Mrs. Spencer Hoyt.

Carrying out the Valentine idea, Mrs. Kenneth Copsey was hostess at an invigorating bridge party at her lovely home on Pine street, Wednesday afternoon. Those hidden to attend the affair were Mesdames Walter Rounten, Wm. Bontadelli, Harry Wingard, Les Cornett of Salinas, Loren Smith, W. G. Cook, J. H. Bastedo, and Charles Helwig.

REPRESENT CARMEL AT MONTEREY BASEBALL DINNER

Representing Carmel at the dinner at the San Carlos hotel Tuesday night honoring the San Francisco Mission baseball club was W. L. Overstreet, "Doc" Stanford, Winsor Josselyn and Bill Frohli. The Mission team will do its spring training at Monterey.

Schools Closed All This Week

All Carmel school children, including those attending Monterey union high school, enjoyed an unexpected vacation this week. The decision to close Sunset school was reached suddenly by the board of trustees last Thursday afternoon, when it was found that nearly 50 per cent of the pupils were absent because of heavy colds, influenza, and some measles. School was closed Friday, to reopen Tuesday morning. But on Monday it was decided to remain closed throughout the week, with the hope that the prevalent illnesses would have run their course and that a change in the weather might bring better health conditions. The high school closed Monday noon, and on Tuesday the elementary schools of Monterey also declared an involuntary holiday.

The office of Sunset school remained open most of the week, as Superintendent Otto W. Bardarson took advantage of the opportunity to speed routine work along. Sunset will resume regular sessions Monday morning.

Carmel Librarian Attends Conclave

Miss Elizabeth Niles, Carmel librarian, attended a meeting of the 2nd and 3rd divisions of the California State Library Association held last Thursday, Friday and Saturday at Palo Alto. She also took advantage of the opportunity to visit, between sessions, the libraries of Burlingame, San Mateo and Palo Alto, where she interviewed librarians on matters of mutual interest.

En route home Miss Niles stopped in Salinas to report to Miss Frink, county librarian, that quite a number of lost county books have been returned to the Carmel library, after her request to Carmelites to search their homes. Miss Frink said she appreciated this effort of householders and hoped the good work would be continued, for one never knows when a book may turn up. No matter how long missing, its return is always appreciated. Miss Frink commented on the small number of books that had been lost in Carmel in proportion to the number in other places, only 50 in all the years since Carmel library added the county service to its own.

Two Woman's Club Section Meets Called

Woman's club section meetings for the week beginning Feb. 17 are scheduled as follows: The book section will meet on Wednesday, Feb. 19, at 10:30 at Pine Inn. The review will be given by Mrs. Mabel Turner on Sinclair Lewis' "It Can't Happen Here."

The garden section will meet on Thursday, Feb. 20, at 10 o'clock at the home of Mrs. I. N. Ford, Junipero and Eleventh. The speaker will be A. Eddy, of Del Monte Nursery, who will talk on orchids.

More Effective Food and Drug Legislation Urged By Speaker

THE need for more effective food and drug legislation was considered by the Monterey County League of Women Voters at its luncheon meeting Tuesday, as the result of a comprehensive report given by Mrs. Joseph Schoeninger, who urged that letters be written to the two California senators and to Congressman J. J. McGrath, urging their support of such legislation. Mrs. Schoeninger showed that the consumers are attempting to become "organized and articulate" as are the manufacturers, advertising agencies and advertising mediums in opposing such legislation on the grounds that it will "hurt business."

The Tugwell bill, written in 1933, was extremely severe and went down before the storm of opposition, Mrs. Schoeninger said. The compromise Copeland bill, much less stringent, was opposed with almost equal bitterness. It has now been emasculated to the point where no opposition is advanced, and is therefore probably useless, she intimated. Rather than sponsoring any particular bill Mrs. Schoeninger suggested that the League members plump for certain provisions which should be included in any satisfactory bill. She listed five points:

1. New legislation should cover standards of quality, requiring manufacturers to give, on the label, a guarantee of quality as well as of quantity.

2. Ignorance of the manufacturers should be no excuse for fraudulent labelling. The 1906 food and drug law had a loophole whereby any charge of violation had to be backed by proof of fraudulent intent; proof manifestly impossible to obtain in most cases.

3. Advertising should be an "extension of the label"; that is, no manufacturer should be permitted to make, in advertising, any claims which he would not be permitted by law to make on his label.

4. Cosmetics should be included under provisions of the food and drug law, as a check to the manufacture and sale of poisonous or harmful cosmetics.

5. The sale of dangerous drugs, as contained in certain reducing nostrums, should be prohibited except on prescription by a physician.

Liquor Dispute Trial Is Set for March 17

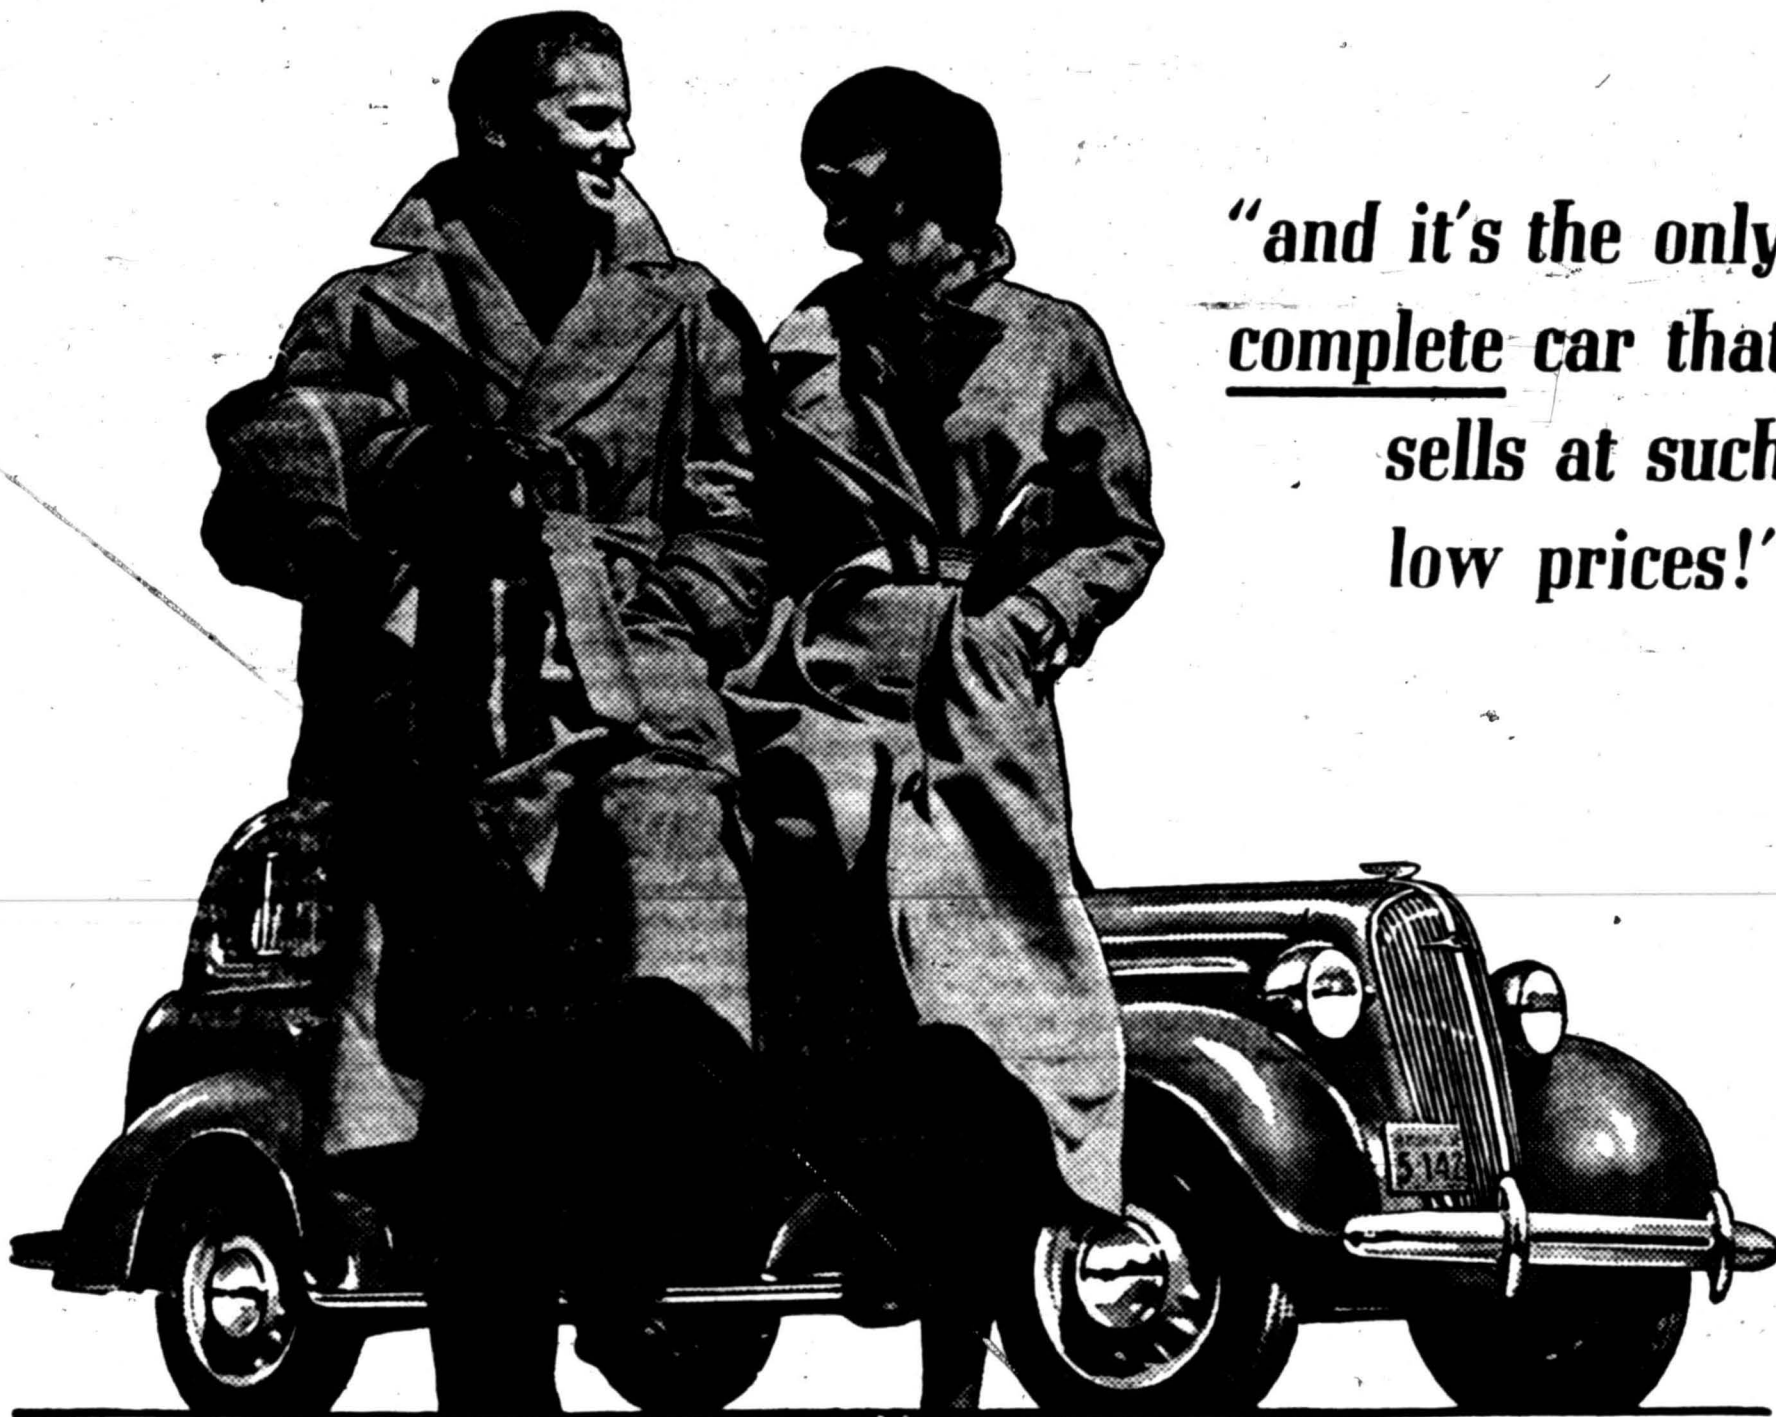

Carmel's famous liquor case will go on trial on March 17 before Superior Judge H. G. Jorgensen. The suit was filed by the Carmel Development Company against Espindolas and Isabel Leidig to prevent the stores from selling liquor in Carmel under terms of the deeds.

Setting the trial date followed an important ruling by Judge Jorgensen, denying a defense motion for an order directing certain other parties being brought into the action.

The action to enforce a ruling in the original deed of the property, that no liquor be sold on the premises by persons purchasing the property, was started in superior court July 17, 1934.

It was charged that Espindolas, leasing the property from Isabel Leidig, was selling intoxicants in the store. The defendants in turn have contended that the original ruling is not enforced in all cases.

Carmel Pistol Club Starts New Shooting Program; Invites Public

A NEW set-up has been worked out by the Carmel Pistol club for the shooters who do not want to fire on the difficult 20 and 50-yard targets. A group of members, called B squad, has been organized to shoot on the police and other targets at whatever distances are satisfactory to the shooters. In addition to the usual paper targets various kinds of special shooting gallery equipment is being obtained to add variety.

The B squad and A squad will ordinarily shoot at different times, so that all can have the kind of shooting they desire without interference. The first get-together and shoot of B squad was held in the indoor range in the basement of the post-office building Tuesday evening. The members and prospective members present had a very good time and all are anxious to continue these B squad shoots.

This group, augmented by new members, has an opportunity to develop a unit within the club that will have the same enjoyment out of the pistol shooting game that the men who originally started the Pistol Club five years ago found in it. There are the added advantages of two good ranges already available, a supply of various kinds of targets on hand, and experienced shooters interested in showing new members what they have learned. At present it is planned to have these B squad shoots every Tuesday night.

The Pistol club urges all members and others interested in this type of shooting to be on hand to help work out details of the shoots.

Motorists Are Enthusiastic About Crystalac

Crystalac is the new, scientific automobile "beauty treatment"—a finish preservation process that is more than a polish—and far superior to any ordinary automobile finish or wax polish now being sold. Crystalac contains no wax, is guaranteed for six months against loss of luster, rain-spotting or heat-streaking. Crystalac protects the original factory beauty and freshness of a car's lustrous finish and if applied twice a year for two years the finish will outlast the life of the car. Crystalac is a veritable armor-plate of protection that penetrates to the very base of the lacquer finish. It guards against loss of luster, permanently. Crystalac keeps chrome parts bright and new.

Rain Spots—Cause and Growth

A rain-spot is caused by the sun's rays penetrating the globules of rain water on the lacquer or enamel which generates a temperature of 350 to 400 degrees, F., and which acts as a burning-glass that actually burns spots in the lacquer. A dulled appearance is first noticeable and this is the beginning of "rain-spotting."

When a car gets caught on in the rain, erosion and the chemical action of the water turn the surface a dirty, whitish gray, not in any solid sheet but in spots about the size of a rain-drop. Water gets down into the pores and that chemical action and erosion keeps on. The spots grow. Look at any car that has been out in the rain without Crystalac and you will find the first rain-spots like a "rot-spot of an apple, ready to grow wider and deeper.

Thus we see the cause of the loss of luster, first gradually and then speedily toward the ultimate chalking and complete loss of the protective finish on an automobile. Crystalac completely preserves and protects against these causes. Don't be old-fashioned—Use CRYSTALAC.

Get it at Carl's Auto Service, 6th at Mission, Carmel. (Adv't)

so they will be most satisfactory to all and to determine when B squad will hold outdoor shoots.

Membership in the Carmel Pistol club is open to anyone over 21 years of age who is interested in pistol shooting and is willing to abide by the rules of good sportsmanship and safety adopted by the club, and who is approved for membership by election of the club. Not only Carmel residents but anyone living on the peninsula or spending some time here as a visitor is eligible for membership. The main requirements are an interest in pistol shooting, whether as a veteran or a beginner, and willingness to be sportsmanlike and careful.

The very small dues, $1 per year, with $1 additional initiation fee the first year, cover the cost of targets and upkeep of the indoor and outdoor ranges. There is no other range fee, as there usually is with other shooting clubs, for the pistol club's expense is greatly reduced since the use of the basement for the indoor range is donated by M. J. Murphy, of Carmel, and of the outdoor range by Paul Flanders, of the Carmel Land company.

Anyone interested in pistol shooting should get in touch with Charles Guth, club president, Carmel police department; Paul Funchess, range officer, phone Carmel 945; or David S. Ball, secretary, phone Carmel 53.

The club pistol team is now shooting one match each week for ten weeks in the Senior Division of the United States Revolver association. A rather slow start in the first two matches was somewhat discouraging to the shooters but steady improvement of the scores has followed. Carmel is at present among the first third of the 98 teams shooting in the Pistol League. This is not bad, considering the small number of shooters available here as compared with those in the large cities. The teams with which Carmel is competing are scattered all over the United States, from San Francisco to New York. In the fifth match, fired last week, the local shooters scored 1095 points out of a possible 1250. Shooting on the team are Hatton Martin, David Ball, Jim Williams, Hugh Comstock, Leonard Williams, S. W. Hyde, Bill Willson, Leonard Johnson, Paul Funchess, and Haskell Warren.

PINE NEEDLES

SEVERAL large and brilliant social affairs enjoyed by Carmelites this week were reminders of the "good old days" when no week passed without a big party or two. Stormy weather affected club affairs and other public gatherings adversely, but seemed not to dampen the festive spirit of the purely social gatherings.

The social week began last Friday, with Miss Celia B. Seymour's studio tea. One group of guests was entertained during the afternoon and a second contingent arrived in the evening. The guests of honor were Miss Seymour's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Grenelle of Evanston, Ill., and Mr. Grenelle's sister, Mrs. George Wilcox, of New York, who are spending the winter with Miss Seymour.

Miss Seymour also planned the affair as an opportunity to present to old friends and new, Carmel's brilliant and charming young singer, Miss Lauran Van Wyck Chinn, who is resting for a couple of months at the home of her parents, Rev. and Mrs. Austin B. Chinn, after arduous studies in San Francisco and elsewhere. An exacting group of songs was presented by the singer, who disclosed a well-placed voice, mezzo in quality, with a great range, fine precision of tone, girlish sweetness, and yet an unexpected richness. As well as being a pleasure to hear, she was a picture for the eye, wearing a beautifully cut gown in a striking shade of deep blue tinged with green, her pretty face undistorted by the most difficult vocal gymnastics.

Mrs. Grenelle accompanied the singer and contributed a group of piano solos as well. At the evening party Miss Seymour did impersonations and humorous stories were told by Herbert Heron. The musical program was repeated during the evening. The guests also looked over Miss Seymour's photographic collection of many of her oil and crayon portraits.

Among those attending the two parties were: Rev. and Mrs. Austin B. Chinn, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Reed, Col. and Mrs. C. G. Lawrence, Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. S. Nye; Mesdames: I. N. Ford, Hugh Comstock, Elsie Rose, N. D. Ball, L. W. McIntosh, Katherine MacFarland Howe, L. Kent Robinson, Vera Peck Millis, Ross C. Miller, M. Osborn Johnson, Fenton Grigsby, Charlotte E. Morgan, W. F. Kilpatrick, Jennie V. Cannon, Mary Heathorne, Helen Geisler, Margaret P. Grant, Elizabeth Sounitza, F. W. Clappett, C. W. Thatcher; Misses: M. DeNeale Morgan, Clara Hinds, Ellen O'Sullivan, Edda Maxwell Heath, Ada Howe Kent, Eloise Carwyle, Winifred Howe, Anne Greene, Agnes Ford, Ruth Huntington, Clara Taft, Mary E. Barnes, E. M. Ackeroyd, Frances Johnson, Agnes Williston, Bernice Trowbridge, Iva Beardsley, Frances Hallam; Messrs: Robert Bruckman, Kevin Wallace, Vadim Sounitza and William Millis.

A brilliant gathering of notables at a cocktail party Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Steffens celebrated the arrival in Carmel of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Spewack, the writers, and Sculptor Jo Davidson, all of whom are guests of the Steffens' this week. This was the first meeting of Steffens, Spewack and Davidson since 1922, at the peace conference in Genoa. Guests at the Sunday afternoon affair were: Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Dickinson, Mr. and Mrs. Rhys Williams, Mr. and Mrs. John Steinbeck, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Griffin, Mr. and Mrs. John O'Shea, Mr. and Mrs. John Douglas Short, Mr. Mrs. Henry Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Fredric Burt, Mrs. Jesse Lynch Williams, Miss Tirzah Gates, Miss Edith Dickinson and Samuel G. Blythe.

Miss Tirzah Gates was welcomed back to the village with a party given Saturday evening at the Greene studio by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sumner Greene, Miss Anne Greene, and Mr. and Mrs. John Gilbert, residents of Vancouver, B. C., who are making a long stay here. Miss Gates, who has been in and of Carmel for many years, though she calls Pasadena home, has just returned after six months in Mexico, visiting relatives on the beaten path of tourist travel. She is here for about a fortnight, stopping at Hotel La Playa.

Guests at the party for Miss Gates were: Messrs and Mesdames: W. O. Wiley (New York), Henry Williams, Rhys Williams, John O'Shea, A. B. Ware, Ralph A. Coote, John Douglas Short, James Gillingham; Mesdames: Robinson Jeffers, Valentine Mott Porter, Jesse Lynch Williams, Russell Matthias, Mimi Porter, William S. Coffin, Lincoln Steffens, Rajah Gopal, Wallace Wilson, Phillip Malkin, Miss Winifred Howe; Messrs: Charles Bragdon, Byington Ford, Noel Sullivan, Robert Bruckman, Laidlaw Williams, Rollo Peters, Marvin Darci, Foster Bennett, Alan Campbell, George Picke, Fred Lape, and Dr. John Ferry.

One of the most beautifully appointed affairs of the week was the one arranged as a 25th wedding anniversary surprise to Mrs. Alfred Wolff by Mr. Wolff and Mrs. John E. Abernethy. The honoree returned from three weeks' stay in San Francisco just in time for the party Friday evening, at Highlands Inn. The table decorations were complete and lovely, in a silver motif appropriate to the occasion. Cocktails at the Abernethy home preceded the dinner. The Wolffs guests were Mr. and Mrs. Abernethy, Col. and Mrs. C. E. Hathaway, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Monroe, Miss Audrey Walton and Bob Leathe.

Guest of Mrs. Katherine MacFarland Howe is her sister, Mrs. L. Kent Robinson of Denver, who arrived at the end of last week to remain for about six weeks.

Dr. D. T. McDougal has returned from a trip to Desert Laboratory at Tucson, Ariz.

After a visit of three months with Mr. and Mrs. David S. Ball, Carlton H. Upson, the father of Mrs. Ball, has sailed for his home in New York City, via the Canal.

Mrs. C. C. Connell of Lisbon, Ohio, is expected to arrive soon at Pine Inn for her annual winter visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Alan Field and their daughter, Miss Margaret Field, have returned to San Francisco after a short visit here.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Edward White have returned to their home in Burlingame after a stay at Peter Pan Lodge, where Mr. White was busy writing, but nevertheless found time to visit a number of old friends in Carmel and vicinity for sight-seeing and the making of color movies. They expect to return for a longer visit in about a week.

Douglas Wilson of Victoria, B. C., arrived in Carmel this week, after having driven alone through the midwestern blizzards from Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Hill of Burlingame (and Hill Bros. coffee) were in Carmel over the week-end. Mr. Hill is a college friend of Mayor James Thoburn.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Bassett made a wedding trip to Highlands Inn following their wedding in Oakland last Saturday. They will make their home in the bay city. Mrs. Bassett was Miss Marie Van Houtte, niece of Albert Van Houtte, and Mr. Bassett is the son of W. K. Bassett.

Mrs. Fenton Grigsby has purchased a home in the vicinity of Forest Hill school, of which she is director.

Miss Celia B. Seymour is looking forward to a summer in the east. She will accompany Mr. and Mrs. Robert Grenelle and Mrs. George Wilcox, her guests of the winter, when they leave for Chicago and New York in May.

Krishnamurti, the Hindu philosopher, is here again, resting after a long and arduous world tour. Only a few close friends have seen him, as he is in seclusion.

Frank (Stonewall) Smith, accompanied by Mrs. Smith and their son are in Carmel for a few days looking after property interests.

Dr. William Moreland Taylor of the Rockefeller Foundation, together with Mrs. Taylor and their three daughters, are here for a month before sailing for Budapest. They have lived most recently in Paris and came to California to visit relatives.

Miss Bette Hyde returned to her home here this week after an extended visit in the east. Her mother, Mrs. Fern Hyde, is at present in Bermuda.

Miss Barbara Wood of the staff of Carmel library attended sessions of the 2nd and 3rd C. L. A. district convention in Palo Alto, and visited relatives in Los Altos over the week-end.

To Mr. and Mrs. Beverly Stover of Hatton Fields a son was born Saturday night at Community Hospital. Mrs. Arthur E. Webb of Coalinga, mother of Mrs. Stover, is here from Coalinga to welcome her new grandchild, the first in the Stover family.

J. A. Eustace was here from Palo Alto, where he is living with his daughter, for two days at the end of last week. Until a few months ago Mr. Eustace was in business here. He is approaching his 91st birthday; last spring Carmel celebrated the 90th birthday of the village's "oldest business man" with a civic dinner. With the exception of failing sight, Mr. Eustace is still in excellent health.

Mrs. Sara Jane Tromboux who left several months ago for Palo Alto after living here for over a year, was down for a four-day visit last week-end.

OUR UNFINISHED PROJECTS

Figures are being somewhat loosely banded about Carmel's uncompleted SERA projects. We share the general disappointment that the projects have been left up in the air, but we feel that the record should be kept straight. It has been stated in the council chambers—and the councilmen, who should have known better, did not challenge the figures—that the original estimate for the beach erosion control job was some $300. This is far from correct. The portion of expense which Carmel undertook to assume was $1045; that is the figure in the agreement which Mayor Thoburn signed.

As to what was actually spent; we doubt if anyone knows exactly, and no guess should be accepted unless it is based on audited figures. In the somewhat bloated figures now being discussed, the rental of city trucks is included, and there is no reason why the city should pay itself an exorbitant truck rental on this job, any more than if the equipment were being used on any other city work, as, for instance, the opening of North Junipero.

Furthermore, there is good reason to believe that if erosion control at the beach had been carried out as originally planned, expense for materials would have been considerably less and the project might have been completed before SERA suspended. There was a sponsor's committee, which was to act in an advisory capacity. That committee did not function effectively. Such suggestions as it advanced were ignored, and it faded from the picture.

No extenuation can be made for the boiler-room project at the school, which apparently has been delayed through sheer inefficiency—the sort of inefficiency which has done much to discredit the whole gigantic work-relief set-up, even with that small sector of the public inclined to favor it in principle. As one of the most conspicuous policies of the Roosevelt administration, the disappointing and unsatisfactory character of much work-relief has undoubtedly injured the prestige of the administration.

The haste with which the whole plan was conceived and executed, the lack of experience in new fields, make it understandable that there might be waste and folly, but the public is not inclined to consider these factors with patience and tolerance. The burden of proof is on the administration. SERA seemed to be shaping into a workable organization just as it was removed from the work-relief field and WPA came, with its tinge of politics and its seeming incapacity to pick up where SERA left off.

An effort at absolute honesty compels us to admit that we are basing our estimate of the results of work-relief—as you, too, undoubtedly are—on the reports of a daily press rather uniformly hostile. SERA and WPA—the latter seriously—broke down in the realm of “public relations.” The attitude of the higher-ups, even toward the friendly or impartial press, is stiff and even hostile. Regional executives, who could do much to give to the papers a friendly slant on local activities, are rigidly muzzled. The papers receive canned releases from San Francisco, either so dryly statistical or so poorly written that few editors will bother with them. Anti-administration papers are conducting their own researches into WPA, seeking things to criticize, which they find in plenty, rather than good points, if any.

Quick action on Carmel's unfinished projects may not win any Republican votes, but might keep a few Democratic ones from slipping away.

DAY'S END

*Burned amber clouds, becalmed in twilight blue,
 Still glow with waning flashes,
 Where sunset's sunken fires are smouldering to Slow-greying ashes.*

*Among the pines the night falls soon, but still
 A listless bird is dreaming,
 With drowsy pipe, of songs to wake the hill
 At dawn's first gleaming.*

*A trout leaps in the lake; with sullen zeal
 The frogs drum in the quiet;
 And one by one the planets lead their reel
 In starry riot.*

*Day follows chastened day—if not in vain
 Their golden-footed dances,
 Why do thy flee again, and yet again,
 Night's crystal lances?*

*Are sunset clouds and gloaming hills the all
 In all of beauty's questing?
 And fading loveliness the coronal
 Of strife unresting?*

—OTTO FREUND.

EXALTED

*She makes clear jell
 And sugar loaf,
 And scrubs the kitchen floor
 And putters with the trumpet vine
 Beside the kitchen door.
 She rules her home
 Its adjuncts all,
 And holds the family purse,
 And with self-righteous pride, she helps
 God judge the universe.*

Here's Looking at You

By LOIS COLLINS PALMER

GOVERNMENT sponsorship of the arts is a well-established principle in many countries which, if younger than the United States as political units, have older racial traditions. In Carmel are now being felt the repercussions of a new attitude toward creative workers. With an air of bewilderment and only faint interest, Carmel is being asked to consider the idea of becoming a real creative art center, instead of being merely the home of certain artists.

Carmel has itself, in certain times past, lifted a haughty nose at the idea of being an “art center,” as the outside world would like to regard it; has been rather proud of the fact that artists sought seclusion here for creative work. But artists stifle in an atmosphere of too much retirement. The world, these last few years, has shown little disposition to beat a trail to the door of the better mousetrap maker. Eastern publishers and connoisseurs of painting have to be reminded, not to say urged, to inspect the wares of our creative workers. In order to want music and books and paintings, people have first to become conscious of their existence. If not even the home town of artists believes that art is an essential part of life, how are outlanders to be convinced?

Art projects, music projects and writers' projects, could do much for Carmel. Too many people here are abysmally indifferent to the work of resident artists, and that goes double for the products of creative workers who are not even sanctified by living here. Carmel looks askance at the opportunity to sponsor the arts, while over the country is sweeping the first great wave of aroused interest in the arts. Podunk and Pumpkin Center may give respectful attention, soon to be aroused to intelligent interest, in native painting, music and literature, while Carmel, under the weight of inert and indifferent leadership, remains just where it was 30 years ago. The artists may live here, on sufferance, but we defy anyone to try to get us to pay any attention to them!

WHY A FIRE DEPARTMENT?

Did you ever stop to question why we have a fire department? Is it to protect the property belonging to the city, or is it, like the street and police departments, to render service to the entire citizenry of Carmel?

If our fire department is for the purpose of serving all of us through its fire-fighting, fire-prevention, and salvage work, then it is to the interest of every one of us to see that our fire department has the best we can afford in the way of equipment, apparatus and housing facilities.

Let us look at it in a purely selfish light. Our fire insurance rates and our protection from all the dangers arising from fires and fire hazards is, to a large degree, dependent upon our fire department.

Do you know the work our fire department is doing to train our school children in the proper manner of marching out of a burning building and to educate them in fire-prevention work in their own homes?

Can you recall a serious fire in Carmel where the loss would not have been less if our fire department had been better equipped to do their work?

Do you know about the work our fire department is doing to prevent fires starting?

It is true our firemen can and do earn a small amount of money based on a merit system but the amount paid them does not in any way compensate them for the amount of time, energy and study they give in service for you.

Ours is a volunteer fire department. Not a man among the 24 is obligated to serve as a fireman if he does not wish to. We are fortunate that these men are willing to do this work for us and we will be wise to make their work as attractive as we can.

Vote YES for firehouse bonds on March 3.

THANKS TO OUR FRIENDS

Two weeks ago The Pine Cone ran a small ad inviting readers to contribute news items to the paper. The result was more “Pine Needles” and other small news items telephoned and written in last week than in any week since the “busy season” last summer. This gave us pleasant proof of the pulling power of our own ads, and also made us realize that perhaps our friends were waiting for an invitation to help in the interesting business of news gathering.

We have reason to believe that no department of the paper is followed with more interest than “Pine Needles.” Babies born, newcomers arriving, Carmelites going a-voyaging, parties given, new homes being built, all the little sidelights of community life, everyone likes to read about. With the best will in the world, our reportorial staff cannot personally contact in any given week all the sources of possible news, for they are myriad. By phoning or writing to us, you can help to make “Pine Needles” more various and more representative of the community. Thank you for ready cooperation thus far.

Status of All Saints Changed

All Saints church, a mission of the Episcopalian diocese since its organization, this week became a full-fledged parish. Delegates returning from the diocesan convention in San Francisco last week brought the welcome news of the church's new status, and at a special called meeting at the parish house last evening, organization as a parish was discussed and completed. Few outward changes will be observed, but the parish members discussed plans for the year's work with renewed enthusiasm, according to the pastor, Rev. Austin B. Chinn.

Delegates to last week's convention included Rev. Chinn, James L. Cockburn, Adam Darling, Alfred W. Wheldon, Cooper Anderson, W. W. Wheeler, Paul C. Prince, Worthington Hogg, W. F. Street, Cecil Haskell and Alfred Wolff. At the same time women of the parish attended the House of Churchwomen, including: Mrs. Vera Peck Millis, Mrs. W. W. Wheeler, Mrs. Austin B. Chinn, Mrs. Elspeth Rose, Mrs. Cooper Anderson, Mrs. Alfred W. Wheldon, Mrs. C. W. Thatcher, Mrs. Louis C. Ralston, Miss Alice M. Gillette and Miss Lydia Weld.

Vestrymen for 1936 were elected at a recent parish meeting: including Messrs. Prince, Wheldon, Cockburn, Darling, Anderson and H. S. Crossman.

Words from Psalms Comprise Golden Text

"Unto thee, O Lord, do I lift up my soul. Shew me thy ways, O Lord; teach me thy paths." These words from Psalms comprise the Golden Text to be used Sunday, Feb. 16, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Soul." Included among the Scriptural selections will be: "Then one of them, which was a lawyer, asked him a question, tempting him, and saying, Master, which is the great commandment in the law? Jesus said unto him, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment" (Matt. 22: 35-38).

The following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included: "The first demand of this Science is, 'Thou shalt have no other gods before me.' This me is Spirit. Therefore the command means this: Thou shalt have no intelligence, no life, no substance, no truth, no love, but that which is spiritual" (p. 467).

Miss Tilly Polak returned early this week from a visit in San Francisco.

Miss Marion Hollins was here Saturday from Pasatiempo country club, to visit her extensive holdings in Carmel Valley.

Art Notes

DECORATION of the recreation hall of the Presidio of Monterey by a staff of skilled and competent artists employed under the Federal Art Project is progressing rapidly, according to an announcement by Joseph A. Danysh, regional director.

The project at the hall consists of a series of 24 panels of cartoons depicting various military scenes and sporting events and a large cloth hanging emblazoned with a regimental insignia.

Such accuracy as is necessary to withstand criticism from those who are familiar with the many subjects depicted became possible only through the splendid cooperation extended by Col. Parker, commanding officer of the presidio.

Many of the scenes display military episodes which include reproductions of cavalry, scout cars, infantry, aircraft and tanks. The artist and his staff, anxious to reproduce every detail, requested Colonel Parker for photographs or sketches from which they could copy the necessary information.

Colonel Parker's immediate response was to assign a scout car with two officers in full uniform and a mounted cavalry officer to pose while sketches were made.

Illustrated Bird Talk for Women

Illustrating his lecture with lantern slides made from his own photographs, Laidlaw Williams gave a delightful talk on birds at the meeting of the Woman's club garden section at the home of Mrs. G. F. Beardsley, Feb. 6.

Mr. Williams gave a preliminary talk on the history of birds, their habits, and their influence in the world of art, recreation, and science. In early Egyptian times the ibis was used much in art. Birds appear often as symbols; the swallow as a symbol of spring; the owl for wisdom; the dove for peace; the hawk for strength; the eagle for freedom; and the goose for folly. In the field of poetry much is written about birds, especially the lark and the nightingale.

As a recreation, the study of birds is of absorbing interest, Mr. Williams said. Scientifically, also, their value is great. An offshoot of the reptile family, their chief characteristics are feathers and a high mobility. The origin of bird migration is unknown. Food and cold weather do not entirely explain them. He told of the U. S. Biological Survey studies of migration, banding birds, and employing hundreds of employees to check up on their habits.

Hawks and owls, although called birds of prey, are really very beneficial as they kill rodents, the speaker said. But through ignorance and indifference they are shot continually. Our feathered friends should be welcomed to our gardens, he urged, as they do much good in eating bugs. They much appreciate bread crumbs and pieces of suet put out for them in winter. A bird bath is their delight, and should be put within sight of a window, from which one will see many a charming little scene enacted.

The Financial Outlook . . .

NEW "highs" in market averages—a remarkable revival of building industries—tax impositions greater than ever before—all point to business expansion on a huge scale, and rising commodity prices.

The opinion repeatedly expressed by noted economists, that expansive credit inflation will radically affect investments, indicates the need of revision in investment procedure.

Market reactions are reflected in the prices of stocks and bonds. Conversely, as one rises, the other falls. "Signs of the times" are ample. True investment is predicated on yield as well as on safety.

To those interested in adjusting their investments to meet present market demands of ample yield combined with safety, we are able to present an unusual offering. Your card or telephone call will bring you information.

WATER PIPELINE GETS CLEANING

Carmel's water supply was improved this week by about 20 per cent pressure on its main feed line when the National Waterways Cleaning Company of New York, put its pipe-cleaning gadget to work.

Under contract, B. W. Roy, field manager from Omaha, Neb., is cleaning the entire line from Forest lake through the 12-inch line to where it connects with the larger line in Carmel valley.

Alger Fast, manager for the Monterey County Water Works, personally supervised the cleaning and found that taking the old accumulation of scale from the pipes increased the efficiency of the line about 20 per cent as well as purifying the water which already has the stamp of approval of health experts.

The work is being done at an estimated cost of about $4200 for the Carmel line alone. The machine used is placed in the pipeline and water pressure moves it through, working like a huge worm it scales every particle of rust and scale from the interior, leaving the pipeline as clean as new.

Ethiopian Red Cross Aid Needed

At a meeting of the executive committee, Carmel chapter, American Red Cross on Tuesday, the dire need of the Ethiopian Red Cross was discussed.

This need was brought out through letters from Admiral Cary T. Grayson, national chairman. At the beginning of the conflict the services of International Red Cross was offered both parties to the conflict. Italy stated that they would be able to take care of their own Red Cross unit without outside assistance but Ethiopia accepted the proffered assistance with gratitude. Since that time Great Britain, Norway, Sweden and the Netherlands have sent medical units. The International committee now makes an appeal for funds to aid in hospitalization and the purchase of supplies; personnel can be secured on the ground.

As Red Cross is a great humanitarian organization, and seeks to relieve suffering throughout the world, the local committee felt that the local chapter should aid in the present situation and voted to send the sum of $40 to national headquarters for relief purposes. It was also determined that no local appeal would be made but that anyone who wished to aid the cause could send their contributions to local headquarters and they would be duly forwarded to Washington.

Local relief work is being carried on in a successful manner by Carmel chapter, stated Mrs. Karl Rendtorff, chairman and the committee was advised of the progress of several important cases.
